

SOUTH JORDAN CITY HISTORY

DUGOUT

South Jordan was settled in 1859 by Alexander and Catherine Lince Beckstead. Like many of the first settlers in the Salt Lake Valley, their first home was a cave dug out of the river bank. These first homes were “a good-sized room” (14 ft. sq.), dug into the hill, with large sun-dried adobe bricks on the front wall. Large logs covered with plants, willows, and mud and dirt formed the roof.

FARMLAND

South Jordan was primarily a rural farming community when it became incorporated as a town in 1935. In 1960, the population was 1,354, and by 1970 the population had more than doubled to 2,942. Housing gradually started to replace farmland as the population once again more than doubled by 1980 to 7,492 and nearly doubled by 1990 to 13,106. South Jordan’s exponential growth since the early 1970s has brought all the challenges and opportunities of growth. The current population is estimated to be 73,666 (7/2019).

AUGUST

Carrington Court

Fishing at Grandpa's Pond this year with our Carrington Court crew was a great day!! First, the weather was at it's best, the fish cooperated (well, at least a little bit of cooperation), and the picnic lunch was delicious. It's takes a small village to make this day work and Carrington Court would like to thank all the "fishing expert helpers"; they brought the fishing poles, baited our lines, untangled our lines and recast our lines!

August 2021

In 1790, the first ice cream parlor opened in New York. During the summer of the same year, our first president, George Washington, is said to have spent $200 to satisfy his craving for the refreshing treat. Inventory records of his Mt. Vernon home also indicate that he owned several ice cream pots made from tin and pewter.

Happy Birthday!
